Leading Distribution Partners opens for business in Cannes

VETERAN producers Howard Braunstein, Alexandre Coscas, Michael R Goldstein and Ben C Silverman have teamed up to launch a new sales company that will directly license both original and third-party TV movies, series and feature films. Launching at MIPCOM CANNES, Leading Distribution Partners (LDP) will be led by Gavin Tyler Reardon, with Braunstein, Coscas, Goldstein and Silverman serving as partners.

Tyler Reardon joins LDP from Canadian producer and distributor Incendo, where he headed up sales and co-productions. He said LDP is "ideally positioned to be an ongoing and go-to supplier of top-quality TV movies and additional content to buyers across the world". He added: "We look forward to meeting with potential new partners at MIPCOM and to continue curating a slate of top-class content across multiple genres for the long term." LDP's launch slate includes Hallmark Original mystery titles Curious Caterer: Grilling Season and Curious Caterer: Fatal Vows; romcoms Game Of Love, A Winning Team and Sealed With A List, and holiday movies Holiday Road and Norwegian Holiday. Among the Lifetime titles on offer are thriller movies Abducted By My Teacher: The Elizabeth Thomas Story and Bad Romance: The Vicky White Story. Reardon has held leadership positions at IM GlobalTelevision, ...and action! Distribution and GRB Entertainment over his 40-year career. Emmy Award-winning Braunstein has produced hundreds of TV movies and series for networks including TNT and Lifetime. Coscas produces and develops content based on formats, books, graphic novels and other IP, alongside independent films. Goldstein is an independent producer who has projects in development with Fox, Bravo, Netflix, Hulu, The Disney Channel and The Hallmark Channel. Silverman is a founding partner in LA-based literary-management company Navigation Media Group, president of Vancouver-based Integral Artists Agency and executive chair of Canadian film distributor Level Film Inc.
